"Open Door" Church Anniversary Theme

Dr. C. P. Swank Addresses Members and Friends of Holy Trinity

DINNER THIS EVENING

"The Open Door" was the theme of the sermon preached to a large congregation of members and friends of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, gathered in celebration of the fifteenth anniversary of the organization of the congregation, by Rev. C. P. Swank, D. D., superintendent of missions of the East Pennsylvania Synod, last Sunday morning.

"The contribution that the church with an open door for fifteen years makes to the faith, spirituality and character building of a community is beyond comprehension," declared Dr. Swank. "Every church is a beacon light in a community—a continual reminder to everyone who passes its doors of the ideals in life and a reproach to sin wherever and in whom-ever found."

Miss Ruth Hoffsten, chairman of the committee to provide a picture of Dr. M. E. McLinn, the first pastor of Holy Trinity, said in part: "He was a man of great faith, great energy and great vision in the Lord's service. May this picture always challenge us to great faith, great energy and great vision in the service of our Lord."

M. R. Mackell responded to the remarks of Miss Hoffsten and received the picture for the congregation.

This Friday night at 6:30 o'clock the congregation will gather at a dinner in the church. Herman E. Metius, a former secretary of the congregation, will be toastmaster. Bringing greetings will be the Rev. S. D. Daugherty, D. D., the superintendent of missions at the time the congregation was organized and through whose direction the church was organized; the Rev. R. J. Wolf, inter-

Mrs. Huber spoke at a luncheon meeting of the council at Erskine Hall, Haverford.

"Women must have 50-50 representation on all committees," the well-known political leader said. "In appointments, the selection of a woman appointee must be the choice of the women and not one super-imposed by the men."

"Our council has built an organization on principles and not on patronage," she continued.

Mrs. Huber outlined pending legislation in Harrisburg and urged members to become familiar with the Goodrich Plan which may be introduced at this session.

Tax Rate Unchanged, Boro Budget $75,950

Debt Service Cost Reduced, More Allowed for Police and Playground

1907 ISSUE ENDS SOON

Narberth Council at its January meeting ratified the tax rate of 16 mills proposed in December and adopted a revised budget of $75,950.59. The tax rate is the same as for the last four years.

The budget is $1118.41 less than that proposed last month, but $559.50 more than the 1936 figure. The largest increases are for police protection, which jumped in the year from $11,000 to $13,175, and the Playground and Community Building expenses, from $3000 to $4400. Most notable reduction was in the debt service items (sinking funds, interest charges, etc.), which in 1936 totaled $14,235 and this year $12,286.59.

Of note is the plan of Council to pay off the 1907 sewer bond issue, which totaled $51,000, on May 1. The issue financed the first sewers laid in Narberth.

William H. Durbin, secretary of the Narberth Recreation Board, reported the Board spent $638.43 of its 1936 $700 appropriation leaving a balance of $61.57.

Edwin P. Dold, tax collector, reported 75 per cent of the borough property and occupation taxes for 1936 had been collected.

Would it be Economy?

With the opening of the 75th Congress and our own State Legislature, interest in government again becomes an absorbing topic of conversation.

Uncertainty as to the President's program in regard to constitutional issues and fear of increased State expenditures and consequent taxation, has made the average citizen more conscious of proposed legislation than usual.

The bills which will be introduced this year will be closely followed by Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen.

The proposed bill for centralized collection of taxes, which is expected to be brought up at this session of the Legislature with the backing of the Economy League, is an example of legislation about which citizens should be informed.

Sponsors of the bill claim that the system would result in the saving of one and three-quarter million dollars a year in this State. This would be effected by the abolishment of the office of local tax collector and the collection of taxes on a county-wide basis by the county treasurer.

Arriving at the figure for the proposed saving, the Economy League, it would seem, has oversimplified the situation by contrasting the total salaries received by the various tax collectors with that which would be paid to a county treasurer.

They neglect to state, however, that for the collection of taxes in a county such as Montgomery, the cost of deputies and clerical help would equal if not exceed the contemplated saving.

Furthermore, the inconvenience to which taxpayers would be subjected, under a system with the tax collector situated in the county seat, is not conducive to co-operation between the citizen and his government.

In certain communities, a need undoubtedly exists for an overhauling of the system of local tax collection.

Economy Leaguers cite the glaring example of a town where a large portion of the taxes are paid by two or three big corporations which own most of the property including the houses in which their employees live. The tax collector receives the maximum per cent allowed by the law, which is reputed to net him about forty thousand a year for little or no work.

In a community such as Lower Merion Township, the tax collector receives the remuneration of one-half of one per cent of all township taxes collected and, in addition, has the responsibility of collecting and turning over to the township commissioners, fairly large sums.

Out of his compensation, he must maintain an office, pay for all necessary salaries and supplies and furnish his own bond for the collection of county taxes, which is no negligible item.

Why such a highly efficient and low-cost-per-capita system should be scrapped for the proposed method of collection, is difficult to see.

Puppet Show Benefit 30th

The Spectator

The Police and the Public

When "Shooley" Malone stepped down, near the year's end, as superintendent of the Philadelphia Police Department, to take the lower-salaried post of Registration Commissioner, the force he was departing from gave him an automobile, and therein lies a fair explanation of the resignation after a service on the throne of only a year. In other words, it is interpreted as making plain that "Shooley" was not made of the executive stuff necessary to boss a large corps of city cops, because if he had been able to do the job as it should and must be done there would have been no regrets on the part of the rank and file on his leaving and no passing of the hat to buy him a grand big gift, police psychology being what it is.

It is evident that the conclusion to quit came of Malone's own initiative, as enough expert criticism had been made of the appointment in the first place to needle Mayor Wilson into standing by his original judgment without reference to the results. The registration appointment seems to be a happy solution of the dilemma, as a superintendent can hardly be returned to a lesser police rank, but it would have been better, in view of Malone's real skill in the outside field, if His Honor had pondered more on the futility of putting a square peg in a round hole before he toyed with Malone's logical future.

It would also appear that the problem appointment which was announced is another of those impulsive procedures which make the water so continuously hot for Wilson, as the man who is capable of filling ideally the large post of chief of a metropolitan police force is not apt to be the kind of a man who will be content to be yanked out of a numerous crowd of his fellows without notice and then told publicly and patronizingly that he is going to be tried out on the job. Obviously the importance of the task is such that the right man for it will insist on saying a few things for himself before he even considers accepting it, and if he is the right man the appointive power, under the code which applies to an advanced order, will not attempt the bumptious liberties with his proper self-esteem and proven ability which Wilson took that night at the armory. The prediction here is that the new incumbent will not last as long as Malone did, in which event there will be another big black mark for S. Davis Wilson.

There is a great deal to be said about police conditions in Philadelphia and other large cities if this were the place to say it. One feature of the case, however, might be outlined. The four-sided man who should be a city policeman would rate $2500 compensation, but the qualities which would make him attractive and efficient would also lure him rather quickly to higher-priced fields. Paid as little as they are, the force draws men as a rule whose chief reason for enlisting is to get "steady work" and, by and large, it must be agreed, kindly, that they register a pretty low I. Q. This serious shortcoming imposes extra duties and obligations on their superiors, which explains why executive police experience of a successful kind is a very valuable asset, and somehow or other a change must come which will not allow so many shifts and experiments to be made at the top on the basis of mere whim or caprice, or because of personal equations.

A case in point is the loss to the city which occurred when Joseph Le Strange was dropped as superintendent. Here was without doubt one of the best police officials Philadelphia ever had, but he had refused to be subservient to Wilson when the latter was Controller (and who was a roaring bull in City Hall in those days) and of course had to lose his head when the new Administration came in.

One of the few college-trained men in the police business, and crystal clear in his thinking, Le Strange handled his task as the highly technical thing it surely is, and no matter who goes or comes after him it is not likely there will be a substantial change in the unusually excellent system of records which he devised. Free from fanfare and keenly alert to the vast problem involved in the effective discipline of an enormous corps, Le Strange was making real strides in having his men acquire that respect for themselves which would in turn produce the respect of the public for them, the lack of which has impaired grievously American police procedure generally. A prodigious worker, with his free time practically non-existent, politics interested Le Strange not at all, and neither did publicity, which was probably not "good theatre" for a man in his position, but the police and the public know that he served friend and foe on the same fair and intelligent basis, and no kind nor degree of irregularity ever marred his long and notable record in the department. Still in his prime, he is no doubt progressing exceedingly well in his present business of private and industrial investigations, but the public service needs such a well-trying man and pity it is that there is not a better way of conserving merit for the civic welfare.

In Lower Merion we have about as competent and capable a police set-up as could be planned for an important suburban area, and it is always easy to see the experienced direction of Superintendent Smith in the department and despatch of our officers. The problem of course is considerably less complicated than is the case in the city, but even so there is a great deal to do to keep things on an even keel hereabouts, and we know our coppers are impressed that they must conserve a fine tradition and that when anything does go wrong the onus is sure to revert to the chief, who has proven himself to be their stalwart and devoted friend.

"BORN TO DANCE"

"Boys--Not Devils"

Second in a series of three articles by W. H. Clark, Field Commissioner for Cubbing, Valley Forge Council, Delaware and Montgomery Counties, Boy Scouts of America.

In the last article we discussed the desire boys have for using their vocal cords. We hinted that we, as adults, would have to surrender a few of our vested rights in order to offer these boys a maximum opportunity for mastering the delicate art of expression.

You will remember that we were looking out our window at a group of noisy boys. This noise was not merely vocal. Much of it was caused by a ceaseless, violent and often aimless activity. Most of the time this muscular activity is without direction, objective, rhyme or reason. Yet behind it all is a fundamental fact—the effort of the individual boy to develop himself. He does not sit down and draw plans for his future development. No—there seems to be within him some kind of urge to burn energy all day long. He is here, there and everywhere. In the attic, down in the cellar, out in the yard, jumping on the bed, sliding down the banister, standing on his head on the sofa and so on for hours at a time. Mother sometimes raises her voice in despair, "Darling, you're ruining the furniture," or more often in anger, "Bob, stop that."

Our patience reaches the breaking point and we wonder if we will last the day through without losing our mind. We pray for the time to come when sleep will claim that boy of ours. But that boy is not a little devil bent on devising some new torture for we adults. He's just a red blooded, natural boy striving to develop just as we did, and what he really wants is ideas from us. New games, that he can teach his pals, scrapbooks and handicraft of many and different kinds to keep his mind and muscles busy. Action, novelty and the opportunity to be a leader are the things that interest him. Take the time to discover what will keep him busy and then pass the knowledge on to him. Now let us look at his room. Aeroplanes on the ceiling, posters on the walls and sticks and stones scattered about the floor. Dust collectors, de luxe, but don't desecrate by dusting or arranging in order. Let him do that, for his room should be his kingdom. But more important, on the walls we find pictures of Babe Ruth, Perry, the Dean Brothers and heroes of football, track and many other sports. Why? Because they were champions and he idolizes a man of strength and ability, a champion in any line. He may look at one of the pictures and then stand before the mirror, flex his muscles and look with admiration at his little biceps and dream of the day when he will hit not sixty but seventy home runs, run faster than Owens and be able to beat Perry with ease. We should encourage this muscular development, for it is only through athletic activity that he can grow into a well-developed man.

Do you ever realize what a lot one can learn from looking at boy's room? Why you can tell at a glance how close he is to his parents, his hobbies, likes and dislikes, his mental development and personal habits. We can discover if his mother understands the motives behind what the boy does or if she is more interested in appearances when the neighbors drop in. There we can discover if Dad is close to his son, if he has taught him how to learn by doing, for the results will show in the room. You have heard it said that

BIG BUSINESS!"

"A fellow asked me one time: 'How does it feel to work for a big corporation?'"

"Well sir, for a minute I didn't know what to say. I never thought of our gang that way. Of course we're big! You've got to be big to serve more than a million and a quarter telephones in Pennsylvania and something like 14½ million all over the country. And I suppose a lawyer would call us a corporation. But shucks! I'm not a corporation and my boss isn't either. None of the boys in our gang is a corporation. Just ordinary fellows doing our jobs the best we know how. Trying to give you the best possible telephone service 365 days in the year."

Thousands of businesses—big and small—are growing bigger with the help of long distance service. In the past ten years, long distance telephone service has steadily advanced in scope, speed and clarity. Again and again in the same period there have been reductions in long distance rates. Long distance takes you there and back faster...easier...at lower cost.

T. C. Yocom Retires From School Board

Cynwyd Man Has Served Since 1914; Also Gives Up Church Post

PLANS HOME AT SHORE

After more than twenty-two years' service as a director of the Lower Merion School District, Thomas Corson Yocom, of Cynwyd avenue, Cynwyd, has announced his retirement. He plans to spend much of his time at Beach Haven, N. J., where he has a cottage.

He also has resigned as vestryman of St. Paul's Memorial Church in Overbrook.

Representing the Cynwyd district and for many years acting as finance chairman of the township School Board, Mr. Yocom originally was appointed by other members of the board to fill a vacancy created by the death of Samuel R. Richards. He took office in October, 1914, and has been re-elected for successive terms ever since. His present term had a year to run. He has served longer on the board than any other member.

It is not expected the vacancy caused by his resignation will be filled before the next election.

Mr. and Mrs. Yocom have a son, Kenneth Hay Yocom, who lives in Germantown, and a daughter, Miss Susan Foulke Yocom, who lives in Philadelphia.

Formerly Mr. Yocom was associated with the Longmead Iron Works, of Conshohocken, a firm that has gone out of existence. He retired from business about fifteen years ago.

Women Voters Hear About Goodrich Plan

Miss Ella Harris Advocates Proposal Before Lower Merion League

HELD ECONOMY MOVE

A discussion of the Goodrich Plan was heard by members of the Lower Merion League of Women Voters Wednesday, when Miss Ella Harris, of Bryn Mawr, spoke before their meeting, held at the home of Mrs. Stella J. Griffiths, 739 South Highland avenue, Merion.

Miss Harris declared that the plan offered an efficient and uniform basis for the administration of relief.

Under this plan a State Board, appointed by the Governor, would have jurisdiction over the relationship of the unemployed and their possible means of employment.

County Boards, appointed by Township Commissioners, would be in charge of the administration of local relief.

The plan is said to do away with duplication of relief from social agencies.

A short business meeting was held before the lecture at which the president, Mrs. J. Alden Tift, presided.

Tea was served, with Mrs. J. B. Wells and Mrs. George R. Reinhart, Jr., at the tea table.

The Simpler . . . The More Efficient!

IT is because Public Utility service is so highly perfected that it seems so simple!

The turning of a switch—throwing of a lever—opening of a valve—may seem to the user to be the beginning and end of starting the service. And, for him, that is true.

But back of the button, or lever, or valve, is a highly efficient organization, involving thousands of workers, millions of dollars of investment, and a mechanized system representing the experience of many years in perfecting the service.

The simplicity of Utility Service is the symbol of its high development.

VALUES IN ALL STYLES and PELTS

It was a foggy night last Friday, but Lower Merion came out of it long enough to take Abington's basketball team 21 to 15 on the loser's floor. The local lads followed this victory with a 21 to 12 shellacking over Todd Coronway's Lansdowne team on Tuesday. This was also played away from home.

The Bulldogs have a record of 3 victories to 1 defeat in league competition until now. Tonight they meet Haverford on the Montgomery avenue gym floor and will have an opportunity to turn in a victory over a surprising group of players. After showing little ability in the games of the early season, the Fords walloped Cheltenham on the latter's floor Tuesday afternoon by a 32 to 26 score. This was quite a feat in the estimation of the basketball bigwigs of the suburban circuit. Cheltenham had been doing some fine upsetting on her own account in the early games of the season. There were few who would have had the temerity to pick Haverford against the Cheltenham.

Radnor has been doing some surprising things this past week, also. The Wayne aggregation has defeated Lansdowne and Abington in a row, and each game was as one sided as the scrap between Baldwin and Edward. The league is now tied up in a knot that resembles the one Gordian made famous. It will take a few sword thrusts to undo it and the team with the speed and shooting skill will emerge on top within the next two weeks. My choice is Lower Merion, because I feel that the boys are about ready to start some fancy basketball. The players who make up the Maroon squad can only play so much bad basketball during one season, and I think they have just about rid their system of the major portion of it.

Lower Merion Junior High School has compiled a record of five consecutive victories since the opening of the season. West Philadelphia Reserves, West Conshohocken Reserves, the Faculty, Phoenixville and Haverford have been taken in stride. One pleasing feature has been the fact that the Leopards have run up at least 30 points in every game they have played except the West Philly affair in which they scored 29. The combination of Ryan, Jones, Dunlap, Farrell, Maxwell and Green and Everhart is on that has rare shooting ability, plus a good foundation of basketball fundamentals. The Orange and Black should go places this season. They play at Pottstown tonight in the first night game of the schedule. Next Tuesday they journey to Bayard Junior High of Wilmington, and open the home season against Radnor, Friday week.

Captain Jack Ryan is pacing the Junior High team in scoring with 21 goals from the field and 13 out of 15 foul shots for a total of 55 points in three and one-half games—an average of about 15 points a game. Leonard Jones, Ryan's running mate has rung up 14 field goals and 5 of 7 foul chances for a total of 33 points in two and one-half games. Bob Everhart, alternate forward has played in two and one-half games and has 23 points, 8 field goals and 7 out of 8 foul shots. Good shooting for young players.

Harold Kline's Reserve team is undefeated at Lower Merion.

J. Howard Mecke, Jr., Begins His Third Development in Cynwyd

Visiting Friends Find Family Unaware of Fire

Man Successfully Rescues $300 After Wife's Frantic Efforts Fail

HOME DAMAGED $4000

Unaware that the front part of their home was a mass of flames, Mrs. Catherine Geraghty and her four children were in the kitchen of their Wynnewood home Sunday night when friends, arriving for a visit, discovered the fire.

The fire caused property damage estimated at more than $4000 to a three-story brick dwelling at 319 E. Lancaster avenue, Wynnewood, where Matthew Geraghty, 39, has been living as caretaker.

As Patrick Mulholland, of Villanova, drove up to the Geraghty home, he saw the reflection of flames through the front windows. With the assistance of Ewing L. Miller, Jr., next door neighbor, he assisted the family to safety and notified the Merion Fire Company of Ardmore.

After she was out of the building, Mrs. Geraghty remembered that her life's savings of $300 in cash was hidden upstairs under a mattress in a bedroom.

She tried several times to reach the room, but was driven back by smoke and flames. Her friends carried the children out but twice the youngest boy, Matthew, Jr., age five, ran back into the house, looking for his mother.

A few seconds later, Geraghty, a gardener, returned home and resisting all attempts to dissuade him, ran into the dwelling and retrieved the $300.

The flames destroyed part of the stairway leading from the first to the second floor, woodwork on the first floor and furniture stored by the Geraghtys in the house.
